

UNION WAITRESSES FREED

Josie Costello, a union waitress, stood jury trial yesterday on a charge of assault on a dabbler. The jury was out three minutes and voted "not guilty." John Herron, assistant states' attorney, and D. B. Clithero for the Knab restaurants went at the case hammer and tongs, trying to fasten guilt on Josie. The warrant was sworn out by Stella Sendlich, a Knab strikebreaker. Josie, her friends and a physician testified that she was in a hospital May 4-7 from a beating at the hands of Stella Sendlich in the Crilly Bldg.

Two waitresses' union pickets, arrested through police ignorance of city ordinances, were discharged after a two-minute hearing by Judge Bowles yesterday. They were Margaret Seichler and May Ryan, arrested in front of Knab's on Washington street. The charge was violation of the ordinance prohibiting the passing of handbills.

FEAR VIOLENCE IN STRIKE

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 10.—Violence at the three Westinghouse plants in East Pittsburgh affected by the strike of 12,000 members of the Allegheny Congenial Industrial Union was feared this afternoon.

In the face of the union's waiver of its demand for recognition, the Westinghouse officials put at work in the plants 200 "guards," precipitating a crisis and ending all probability of successful mediation.

WHY NOT COMFORT?

By Jim Manee.

We folks who seek the shade of trees,
And do about as we dern please,
And have a chance to get some breeze,

Have got no kick—that's true.
When we can take our hat and coat,
And cast 'em off and bare our throat,
There's reason much for us to gloat,
Cause we don't have to do
The things our friend the mailman does—

He wears his coat and just because
"Them's orders," though he sweats,
he does.

Now how would that strike you?

P. S.—Take 'em off, Mr. Mailman, we know you.
